TOKYO SERIES

The TOKYO SERIES is a collection of 12 games about the every day beautiful life in Tokyo, Japan!

All of the titles can be played independently, or mixed together in various ways with new rules for an expanded or unique experience.

Jidohanbaiki (vending machine in Japanese) is a framework game providing various components from which many games have been created. Complete with 3D miniature drinks, crates, and a vending machine tower to drop the drinks into, the game was made in celebration of Japanese vending machine culture. Just as in life, drinks may become stuck and even knocked out again later.

The components were shared with talented designers from around the world who each put their own creative spin on them, contributing to a collection of 18 light to mid weight games. From dexterity flicking to strategic area control to economic simulation, Jidohanbaiki offers a selection of unique gaming experiences that accomodate any age or play preference.

CONTENTS

- 1 miniature vending machine tower
- 36 miniature drinks: 6 shapes & 6 colors
- 6 miniature yellow crates
- 12 mini sized cards
- 59 die cut yen chits
- 6 double sided vending machine ad signs
- 2 drink label sticker sheets
- 100 page rulebook with 18 game rules in EN/JP

TOKYO TSUKIJI MARKET

TSUKIJI MARKET takes a bottom-up approach to player driven economics, using tonal wooden fish tokens and dockable resin boats to engulf it's players as Japanese fishermen responding to vast supply and demand, perceptive value, and engine building at Japan's largest wholesale fish market!

The game evolves around players investing in certain fish markets, then using the licenses obtained there to fish and sell their catch to other players at a price they choose. On top of this is a variable set of central markets, each with their own unique rules and resources.

The goal is to earn the most yen, but this will be offset by a resource score that will keep everyone on their sea legs!

CONTENTS

- 6 double layer harbor cards with port coverings
- 16 custom resin Japanese fishing ships
- 16 unique market boards
- 32 license chits
- 54 wooden fishing barrels
- 106 custom shaped wooden fish resources
- 70 yen chits

In TOKYO JUTAKU you will take on the role of a famous Japanese architect with the goal of building small homes on a strange or limited size property.

In this real time dexterity game, players will stack geometric pieces according to certain building requirements such as the number of floors, and number of pieces allowed.

You can only build with one piece at a time, with no subsequent higher floor overhanging a lower one. The harder your conceptual building the more you will earn if you can complete it first! As soon as one player has claimed 4 site cards, the game will end, all players will add up their total yen payments and the richest architect will be declared the winner!

Inspired by the extraordinarily entertaining and popular Japanese reality television genre, TOKYO GAME SHOW gives players the opportunity to put on a colorful wristband and appear in their very own game show.

One player takes on the role of the host, who chooses 5 games to play from a multitude of 63 options in 11 categories. Contestants will have their skills of dexterity, knowledge, wit, rhyming, animal impersonation, and even ability-to-carry-disks-with-pinky-fingers put to the test!

The TOKYO SERIES is driven by an exploration of combinable mechanics between games from across the collection, and in GAME SHOW entire games from the series can be used as in-game challenges.

CURRENCY TORRAKU is a set of miniature metal pieces that can both be used as a currency in any TOKYO SERIES game, or as a standalone title!

Increments of coins and notes are replaced by different sized objects found in Japanese culture. A small truck is used for the ¥1000, a coin laundry washing machine for the ¥500 and a rice cooker for the ¥100. Place a washer in a truck bed and magically you have ¥5000!

In one of the standalone titles, Stack Attack!, players compete to get rid of all of their pieces first by stacking them in a shared tower. Before stacking begins, players take turns declaring the type and number of pieces they believe they can stack in a round. If anyone knocks the tower over the fallen pieces are added to their collection.

CONTENTS

- 40 white 100 yen rice cookers
- 12 white 500 yen washing machines
- 12 white 1,000 yen Japanese truck

The first in a line of games played using Japanese Washi Tape, Cats is a modular experience adaptable for 2-6 players where you will play a cat in search of a fish in the city of Tokyo!

Using only a writing instrument for each player, the map is created and players then take turns strategically placing fish and their cat(s). Next, alternating back and forth, you will move one of your cats on your turn in an attempt to grab a fish on the opposite side of the map and return home with it.

There are two special moves in the game, allowing your cat to make a Super Amazing Jump, or disappear into a sewer and pop out again at a new location! TOKYO WASHI GAME CATS is the first game in the world made only from a roll of tape!

In partnership with mt masking tape, CATS is manufactured to the highest quality in Japan.

The material series is a set of games that explore and challenge various materials and their uses.

Each game focuses on one material. Everything from the box to the components inside must only be made of that material type, which then influences and dictates the game mechanics.

Play everyone's favorite classic lawn games such as Croquet, Bocce, and Kubb on your table! METAL includes six miniaturized backyard games, showcasing a sleek aluminum two-piece box and solid metal pieces.

Use the included tiny golden mallet as an ice breaker at any event, or leave it out on your coffee table as a one of a kind showpiece!

CONTENTS

- 1 two-piece telescoping cast aluminum box
- 1 golden mallet, zinc
- 9 geodesic balls in 4 colors, zinc
- 1 skull king pin, zinc
- 12 gold numbered pins, zinc
- 6 throwing batons, aluminum

Japanese Designer games are small box games licensed from designers in Japan.

I take these wonderful games, remake the artwork/components, then add some elements to ensure they keep with the high quality and aesthetic of my design ethics.

Cactus (based on the game TRIBE, designed by Naotaka Shimamoto and published by itten), is a dexterity friction balance game that has players competing for flowers in the desert by stacking strange colored shapes onto cactus!

Cactus shares around half of the overlapping pieces with tribe, with the major changes being a re-theme to the desert (my home territory!). The piece sizes have been reduced by around 50%, there's a new color scheme, and a lot of fun new shapes! The rules included are also slightly simpler than the original, and both versions can be played.

CONTENTS

- 1 two-piece telescoping debossed paper box
- 1 custom white die with screen printing
- 5 laser cut painted cactus with stands
- 25 laser cut painted shapes (5 colors)
- 10 custom laser cut painted desert shapes

Praise (based on the game HOMERO designed by Peke), is a game about discerning whose compliments are genuine, and whose are fake. In Japanese culture, many people praise others as a cultural norm, but your true friends have to be discovered by their honest praises!

To mix up the game even more, emotion cards have been added which must be used to flavour the delivery of a complement in game. Can you determine who is giving you a surface level compliment and who is not? Find out in Praise!

CONTENTS

- 1 two-piece telescoping debossed paper box
- 36 bridge sized fake compliment cards
- 32 mini sized emotion cards

Colorful (based on the game MATCH ME! by OHTANI Tadashi and published by COLON ARC), is a co-op game about categorizing and matching colors as a group. Each turn a player will be given a general topic, and must come up with a one word more specific example within that topic for the group to secretly match with a color card in their hand. After five rounds, cards are checked to see if the group was successful.

I have experienced this game with many different cultures. After translating it into English I've also added a competitive mode, two-color mode, and a team version that gives unique insights into what our perception of color is as a species, and how it differs between individuals.

CONTENTS

- 1 two-piece telescoping debossed paper box
- 90 mini sized color cards (6 sets of 15)
- 45 mini sized subject cards

This highly experimental series of zines explore an overlap of art, literature, and games. Each title is vastly unique, covering topics such as communication, introspection, photography, and much more through an innovative medium.

The production features a linen stock cover, spot UV, and linen taped binding.

Nothing To Talk About is a zine with 9 games for 2 people to play over any messaging app. All of the games are vastly unique, with a range of styles and mechanics. Use these as an ice breaker, a stress reliever, a creative brainstorming tool, or a way to explore a relationship!

Each game encourages play through a ritualized setting. One simply needs to send a photo of a single page of rules to someone on the other end of their phone, and the game begins!
